

ABSTRACT

A composition which is advantageous not only in that it has biodegradability and flame retardancy as well as mechanical strength, but also in that the composition disposed of has few adverse effects on the natural environment. The composition is characterized in that it comprises at least one organic polymer compound having biodegradability, a flame retardant additive, and a hydrolysis inhibitor for the organic polymer compound having biodegradability.